Theme: Bold by Design: Empowering Change

Built // Environment created by Petar Sesar

Description:

How can we empower change? Perhaps the best way to go about a change is to be bold by design within our built environment. For a design to empower change, the design has to be empowering in itself. I believe that with regards to change, our industry need to implement a responsible relationship with our environment. An empowering design in Canada should be bold, it should be Canadian, but it should also be cognitive to what makes Canada so special... its environment. For architects of all scales of projects to incorporate a balance of creative design, tradition, and the environment, this formula is destined to empower others to regard more highly the importance of cultural and environmental sustainability for the future.

My design is composed of a series of photographs I took across Canada, blending the Mountains of Banff, trees of Southwestern Ontario, cranes of Ottawa, and Birds who share our environment, both built and natural. All graphic material used in design by author.
