Summary

The OAA supports the use of industry standard documents. The use of standard documents allows the parties to concentrate on project specific issues without having to worry about boilerplate sections. To that end, the OAA developed several standard contracts for use with clients and consultants, which balance the needs of the parties. The OAA consulted with and had the contracts reviewed by representatives of various industry groups and by lawyers specializing in construction law who work for clients, architects and consultants.

The contracts of the OAA 2021 suite of contracts are organized numerically:

- OAA 600 – Long form contract to be used between an OAA Certificate of Practice holder and a client
- OAA 800 – Short form contract to be used between an OAA Certificate of Practice holder and a client for use on less complex projects (derived from OAA 600)
- OAA 900 – Standard form of Subcontract between OAA Certificate of Practice holder and Subconsultants (can be used with OAA 600, OAA 800, and other prime contracts)

There are corresponding usage guides and instructions for the contracts, which provide background information about how to fill in and use the contracts.

Index

The OAA contracts and guides listed below were current as of the date this index was issued unless noted otherwise. The OAA recommends the use of the most recent versions of the standard documents.

Note: The documents in the OAA 2021 suite of contracts were revised for compatibility with CCDC 2-2020, applicable law, and to respond to changes in industry practice. Older versions of the contracts have been withdrawn from use as of June 2023.
