The Ontario Association of Architects (OAA) is a self-regulating professional body that exists under Ontario law, specifically, the Architects Act. The OAA protects the public and governs architects. The Association is dedicated to promoting and increasing the knowledge, skill, and proficiency of its members. In Ontario there are 3,842 architects and 114 Licensed Technologists OAA (OAA members), 1,487 intern architects (graduates working towards being licensed), and 551 students (enrolled in a school of architecture). In addition there are 283 honorary or retired members.

The OAA licenses architects and certifies practices. Ontario architects are highly trained professionals. You can only call yourself an “Architect” if you are licensed by the OAA.

Architectural practices provide architectural services to the public. For an architect to offer any service to the public they must have, or work for, a “Certificate of Practice,” which we call “practices.” There are 1,770 practices in Ontario.

The construction, enlargement or alteration of all buildings in Ontario requires an architect unless it says differently in the Architects Act or in the Ontario Building Code.

PLEASE CHECK THE “TABLE OF CONTENTS” for the location of the information you require.

Practices are listed under their legal business names alphabetically, e.g. The Architects’ Studio will be listed under “T” for “The.” “William Smith Architect” will be listed under “W” for William.

If you are seeking a specific architectural practice, first check the alphabetical listing to find the practice’s location (city/town). This is important as a firm located in Nepean will be listed under Nepean, not Ottawa. The former cities of Metropolitan Toronto are all listed under Toronto; Scarborough, for example, will be listed under Toronto, not Scarborough.

Some architectural practices have included a profile of their experience and design philosophy. These descriptions are provided by the practice. Although the Ontario Association of Architects can assume no responsibility for the accuracy of these statements, architects are bound by principles of professional conduct, which stipulate that they not misrepresent themselves or their practice with regard to qualifications, experience or capabilities.

All practices listed are Holders of a Certificate of Practice and have met the requirements as established by the Architects Act and Regulations. Only Holders of a Certificate of Practice may offer architectural services to the public.

2017 RAIC/OAA Festival of Architecture

Architecture 150

The Westin Ottawa
May 24–27, 2017, Ottawa ON

The four-day Festival celebrates the theme of Architecture 150. As Canadians celebrate our country’s 150th anniversary, we will pause to consider the role of architecture in creating our built heritage and expressing our culture as we move forward. Architecture profoundly affects people; it forms the buildings and communities that Canadians call home, and it reflects the values of society. The work of architects contributes to well-being, quality of life and economic prosperity. Canadians increasingly appreciate design, yet public awareness of the role of architects is lower than the profession would like. As we solidify the cultural legacy of past generations, how do architects of today and tomorrow exercise their leadership in creating livable and sustainable communities shaped by enduring design excellence? Join us in Ottawa in May 2017 to explore how.

Visit www.oaa.on.ca for more information.
WELCOME TO THE OAA’S DIRECTORY OF PRACTICES AND MEMBERS

The Profiles Directory is the OAA’s vehicle for Ontario’s architects to introduce topical issues that are affecting the industry today and to provide important and helpful information to their clients and potential clients.

THEME: ARCHITECTURE IMPACTS EVERYONE, EVERY DAY

Building on the OAA’s public awareness campaign, in conjunction with Council’s priority to take the campaign to the ‘next level,’ the theme this year illustrates how architecture is part of our daily lives “impacting everyone, every day.”

Architecture’s broad influence expresses how architects and architecture positively impact our world and how they contribute to the goals and objectives of society, clients, and users. This edition of Profiles presents an overview of the OAA’s stories, which illustrate the possibility, influence and impact of architecture.

Highlights from the series of campaigns undertaken in 2015-2016 are featured, including: Architecture is Culture; Canadian National Exhibition, Women in Architecture, Libraries, Architectural Photography Tips and Cottages, Cabins and Camps.

These campaigns focus on telling stories, and encourage comment and feedback. Through the use of the web and social media, these campaigns have a broader reach and influence. Together, they contribute to and aim to stimulate a dialogue about architecture.

Public engagement continues to be a key objective to broadening awareness. In October 2016, the OAA launched a microsite specifically focused on public engagement, with this very theme of “Architecture impacts everyone, everyday.” The 2017 Profiles Directory presents the possibilities content supported by social media in relation to public outreach and the broad audience that can be captured. The stories appeal to architecture enthusiasts and also introduce and elevate the topic for those who have not yet been captivated.

RECOGNIZE LANDMARK ARCHITECTURE IN YOUR COMMUNITY

GET READY! YOU CAN SUBMIT to win an OAA Landmark Designation Award for buildings in Ontario. This is a great way to learn more about a building in your community and get it recognized. Two thousand and seventeen is Canada’s sesquicentennial, a fantastic opportunity to celebrate the diversity and impacts of architecture across this province.

A Landmark Designation recognizes buildings that demonstrate architecture’s beauty, endurance and lasting contribution to community and society.

Now is your opportunity to begin brainstorming and researching. The Landmark Designation is awarded annually and the Call for submissions is announced in the fall. Visit www.oaa.on.ca for more information.

THE OAA’S PUBLIC AWARENESS CAMPAIGN

ARCHITECTURE IMPACTS EVERYONE, EVERY DAY

Campaigns that Broaden the Understanding of Architecture in Our Daily Lives

THIS YEAR’S PROFILES DIRECTORY FEATURES a series of postings from the OAA’s blog.

In May 2014 the OAA launched its blog, called “blOAAg” (blow-g). In just over two years, this section of the OAA Website www.oaa.on.ca has become a favourite.

The OAA and its members post content including articles, images, videos, texts or links to the blOAAg. Content is displayed in a visual grid and allows public participation and feedback through sharing and comments.

To increase traffic to the blOAAg and populate the space, a series of campaigns is being used to engage in current issues and trends already underway. We’re aiming to bring architecture into timely conversations and events that are already on people’s minds.

We invite you to visit the blOAAg, get acquainted with the content and be sure to share your favourites or comment on a posting. If you have an idea, or a story for the blOAAg, please contact us at oaacommunications@oaa.on.ca.

IN 2015, THE OAA LAUNCHED a campaign to have architecture specifically written into the first Culture Strategy for Ontario. A petition was launched on Thunderclap and supported by a social media campaign to raise awareness to both the public and OAA members throughout the spring of 2016. Letters and phone calls contributed to the response. More than 1,000 people signed the petition to ensure architecture was clearly included within the government’s final strategy.

For a first-time effort the OAA is pleased to report that architecture now appears in the final Culture Strategy.

Visit the Government Relations portal to view related correspondence with this campaign at www.oaa.on.ca, “public resources,” go to: government relations portal.

THE CALL FOR SUPPORT

The Province of Ontario has launched a province-wide consultation to develop the first Culture Strategy for Ontario. This strategy will set a vision for culture in Ontario, identifying principles and priorities to guide the government’s support to culture for the next five years.

The current discussion paper (www.mtc.gov.on.ca/en/publications/Culture_Strategy_Discussion_Paper.pdf) fails to recognize the contributions of contemporary architecture, and design in general, to Ontario’s culture scene. In fact, the discussion paper doesn’t even mention the word architecture at all! It also fails to recognize the important role architecture plays in creating the spaces for culture, from libraries to concert halls, enabling and influencing so many of our cultural expressions.

We need your support to make architecture and design cultural priorities for Ontario. We have to make sure our voices are heard and let the government know that architecture and design are integral parts of Ontario’s culture.

We invite you to tell the government what architecture means to you and your community. How does architecture contribute to your understanding of Ontario’s culture?

Please take a moment to join our campaign. Attend a town hall session (www.ontario.ca/page/ontarios-culture-strategy), share ideas on the Culture Talks website (http://talk.ontario.ca/culture/), or use #ONculture on Twitter. Tell the province what architecture and design mean to you!

To show your support, please take a moment to add your name to our Thunderclap. By signing up, you help us reach thousands of followers with a message calling on the province to make architecture and design a priority in Ontario’s new culture strategy.

AS THE SUMMER WOUND TO a close, the Canadian National Exhibition celebrated its 137th anniversary. It has long been a summer tradition, and today more than 1.5 million people visit the 18-day event, which includes midway rides, games and food, concerts, performances and special events. It is held at Exhibition Place, a 192-acre site near Toronto’s western waterfront. The site features several buildings and structures including a football stadium, band shell, parks, fountains, plazas and parking lots. Many of the buildings have been recognized under the Ontario Heritage Act. This series focuses on the architectural significance of the site and raises awareness of how architecture adds to a treasured experience.

This series also introduced the location for the 2016 OAA Conference and acknowledges the ongoing conversations regarding the future development of the area.

The Princes’ Gates
August 31, 2015

The eastern entrance to the Canadian National Exhibition grounds was built in 1927 to commemorate 60 years of Canadian Confederation. Originally named the Diamond Jubilee Gates, they were soon renamed to honour the visit of the Prince of Wales, who later became King Edward VIII, and his brother Prince George, crowned King George VI after his brother’s abdication.

The Princes’ Gates were designed by the Toronto architectural firm of Chapman and Oxley, founded by architects Alfred Hirschfelder Chapman, president of the OAA from 1929-1930, and James Morrow Oxley. The statues atop it were modelled by Charles Duncan McKenzie, a frequent collaborator on the decorative treatment of many Chapman and Oxley projects.

The monumental gateway is composed of a central triumphal arch, flanked on either side by a curved colonnade of nine columns representing the nine provinces that were members of the confederation the year the gates were built. Above the central archway and holding a single maple leaf is the Goddess of Winged Victory, flanked by allegorical figures representing progress, commerce, industry, science and agriculture. The gates were completed in less than five months through the innovative use of cement and stone.

Automotive Building
September 7, 2015

Completed in 1929 to showcase the latest cars and trucks, the Automotive Building was the result of a design competition that saw 30 architectural practices submit proposals for the new exhibition building. The winning design was that of young Toronto architect Douglas Edwin Kertland, who until that point was mostly known for his residential designs. In 1931, Kertland received an honourable mention in the Toronto Chapter of Architecture and Applied Arts for the exterior detailing of the Automotive Building. Kertland served as president of the Royal Architecture Institute of Canada (RAIC) in 1956 and 1958.

The building captures the transition between two architectural styles at the Canadian National Exhibition. Its massing, proportions, arches and façade follow the principles of Beaux-Art Neoclassical architecture that had characterized many of the exhibition’s buildings including the adjacent Princes’ Gates (1927). However, much of its detailing and ornamentation showcase Art Moderne and Art Deco, which would be the styles of choice of future exhibition buildings including the Horse Palace (1931) and the Bandshell (1936). The building was praised in journals of the time for harmonizing Classical principles with elements of Modernity. In 1967 the auto show left the Ex. For several years after, the CNE used the old building to host numerous events. In 2009, the Automotive Building was renovated as the Allstream Conference Centre. In 2016, the restored building will serve as venue to the OAA Annual Conference.

Enercare Centre (National Trade Centre)
September 4, 2015
By Zeidler Partnership Architects

One of the newest additions to Exhibition Place is the Enercare Centre, originally named the National Trade Centre. Completed in 1997 and designed in joint venture by Zeidler Partnership Architects and Dunlop Farrow Inc., the centre provides 1,086,000 square feet of exhibition space, including a 518,000 square feet Exhibit Hall (which can be subdivided into four separate halls), a 405,000 square feet swing space that connects the Exhibit Hall to the existing Coliseum and industry buildings and an underground link connecting the Exhibit Hall to the Automotive Building. The project also includes an underground parking level for 1,294 cars and surface parking for 166 vehicles. A 1,400-foot long Grand Concourse joins the activity of the centre’s function with those on the Princes Boulevard.

While large in scale and contemporary in nature, the Centre is sensitive to the history of Exhibition Place. A third of its main façade, that closest to the Princes’ Gates, matches the elevation of the historic 1929 Automotive Building, displaying similar massing, material and length. The remaining 900 feet take the form of a slight curve, with four glass towers punctuating its length.

In 1999 the centre received an OAA Award of Excellence, in recognition to the craft in designing so large a space and still retaining a sense of scale and detail. In particular, the jury praised the public façade for its inventive use of lanterns to measure space.
ESTHER MARJORIE HILL, A GUELPH native, holds the distinction of being the first woman in Canada to receive a university degree in architecture (1920) as well as being the first registered female architect in Canada (1925). Her education and professional development coincided with the Canadian women’s suffrage movement. Her entry into the profession was significantly later than women pioneers in other countries, including the U.S.A. where Louise Blanchard Bethune registered as a member of the American Institute of Architects in 1888 and the U.K. where Ethel Charles became an architect in England in 1898.

Daughter of Jeannie Stork Hill, who was one of the first 11 women to study at the University of Toronto and a member of the National Council of Women, Esther Marjorie Hill began studies in architecture at the University of Alberta but transferred to Toronto when the program was cancelled in 1918.

On June 4, 1920 Hill crossed the stage of Convocation Hall at the University of Toronto to become the first woman in Canada to receive a university degree in architecture. While many celebrated the occasion, including the national press, others were not overjoyed. Missing from convocation was C.H.C. Wright, chair of the department of architecture, who protested her graduation by refusing to attend the ceremony.

After receiving her degree, Hill found work as an interior designer at the Eaton’s department store. She eventually returned to Edmonton where in 1921 she applied to become a member of the Alberta Association of Architects. Her application was denied after the Association introduced a new requirement demanding one year of full time experience in an architecture firm.

“One must have artistic talent, practical experience, professional knowledge, good business and executive ability, resourcefulness, and a determination to persevere. With these assets there is no reason why a woman should not be as successful as a man.”

—Esther Marjorie Hill, Toronto Star, June 15, 1920
Throughout her professional life Hill never abandoned the crafts she learnt during the Depression. She became a member of the Victoria Weaver’s Guild and in 1942 won first prize for her weaving work at Toronto’s CNE. She also had a strong sense of social responsibility, dedicating five years of service to Victoria’s Town Planning commission.

NOTE:
1. Researcher Robert Hills recently discovered evidence (May 2016) that Esther Marjorie Hill may not have been the first woman in Canada to receive a university degree in architecture; it was Alice Charlotte Malhiot, who graduated in 1914 from the University of Alberta. Ontario’s First Female Architects: Elma Laird

October 16, 2015

WHILE ONTARIO WAS THE FIRST Canadian province to see a woman graduate with an architecture degree (1920), it would take another decade for the first woman to be registered as a member of the Ontario Association of Architects. This was, in part, the result of changes to the legislation governing the practice of architecture within the province. While the OAA was established in 1889, it would not be until 1931 that Ontario’s Architects Registration Board would be instituted, making membership mandatory for anyone wishing to use the title architect. The legislative change also granted membership “to anyone who had styled themselves an architect, prepared plans, and supervised construction for one year prior to July 1, 1931.” It would be in this legislative context that the first two women, Elma Laird and Alexandra Birikova, would apply for registration and become members of the OAA in 1931. They would also be the only women to receive their licenses in the 1930s, in part because the Great Depression (1929-1939) further reduced opportunities for women to enter the profession.

This is the first of a two-part post exploring the life of Ontario’s first female architects, Elma Laird and Alexandra Birikova.

Architect: Elma Laird.
Laird became a member of the OAA. Unfortunately, her architectural career was cut short with the arrival of the Great Depression. In 1934 Laird left Bodley’s office and began working as a secretary at a stationary firm until her retirement in 1968. She however never renounced her OAA membership.

Ontario’s First Female Architects: Alexandra Biriukova

November 10, 2015

An extract from the OAA Centennial History Book by Geoffrey Simmins

This is the second of a two-part post exploring the life of Ontario’s first female architects, Elma Laird and Alexandra Biriukova. In our previous post we discussed some of the circumstances, social and legislative, surrounding their registration, as well as provided some insight into the architectural career of Elma Laird. In this final post we take a look at the life and career of Alexandra Biriukova and her only known built work, the Lawren Harris house.

Below is an excerpt from Geoffrey Simmins’ “Ontario Association of Architects: A Centennial History” where he provides an account of Biriukova’s career along with a description of the Lawren Harris house. We have included the images that accompany the excerpt.

Alexandra Biriukova was born 10 July 1895 in Russia. Her father worked as a civil engineer; when Alexandra was born he was working on the trans-Siberian Railway for the pre-Revolutionary government. With her two sisters she lived on the train as it inched east to Vladivostok. She was taught by private tutors and was fluent in German, French, and English as well as Russian. Following in her father’s technical career, Biriukova studied architecture an in 1914 was awarded a degree in architecture from the university in Petrograd (now Leningrad [now St. Petersburg]). The family were White Russians, and after the Revolution they fled the country, ending up in Rome, perhaps via Hong Kong. In Rome, Biriukova undertook further studies at the Royal Superior School of Architecture, graduating in 1925. It is thought that she worked then for a registered architect in Rome although this has proved impossible to document. After her parents died in Rome, Alexandra, with her sister Yulia Biriukova (1897-1972), a painter, emigrated to Toronto in 1929. (Yulia seems to have established herself in the city first; there may have been relatives in Canada.)

Alexandra wasted little time establishing her own practice. She became known by some of the city’s leading artists and architects. In 1931, for instance, when the new Architects Act required that all persons practicing architecture in Ontario register with the OAA, Biriukova’s application was endorsed by three prominent men: architects F.H. Marani and Douglas Kertland and painter Lawren Harris, unofficial dean of the Group of Seven.

Her first major commission – as it turned out her only one – was to design a house for Harris. (This commission actually preceded her membership in the OAA.) There is some doubt, however, about just how much credit Biriukova should receive for this house. Although Biriukova is named as architect on the contract drawings for it – still preserved among the Toronto City Hall new technological developments as they affected housing, as is seen in recessed radiators, metal-framed industrial windows and chromed-steel balustrades.

It must have been a mixed blessing for Biriukova to have been awarded such a prestigious commission as her first architectural work in Canada. For nothing followed after it. Was this because she was a woman – a foreign woman at that – because she designed in a modernist idiom in a largely conservative city, or simply because the Depression reduced any construction to a minimum? The evidence permits no unequivocal answer; presumably each element was a factor. We will probably never know what path her thinking followed when no commissions followed the Harris house. But it may be no coincidence that Biriukova resigned from the OAA in 1934, the same year that Harris left Toronto; his support seems to have been problematic but crucial. Whatever the reason for her resignation, Biriukova then trained as a tuberculosis nurse at the Free Toronto Hospital for the Consumptive Poor, now called West Park Hospital, York, and worked there until her retirement in the 1960s. Those who knew her later seem not even to have known that she had been an architect.”

THE EVOLUTION OF THE ONTARIO LIBRARY

The following articles were originally published on OAA's bI0AAG.

IN ONTARIO ALONE OVER FIVE million people, or almost 37 per cent of the population, are active public library cardholders, making libraries some of Ontario’s most important community hubs.

To kick off 2016, bI0AAG turned its attention to this beloved building type with a series on Ontario’s Libraries! The series highlights libraries of all types and scales, from heritage buildings to projects under construction, from the modest to the monumental.
Sitting atop the Niagara Escarpment in the former township of Waterdown (now part of Hamilton) the Waterdown Library and Civic Centre is a 23,500 square feet community hub housing not only a Hamilton public library branch, but also the city’s municipal service centre, a senior centre, Flamborough information and city services, and the Flamborough archives. This single-storey, split-level building has been cleverly designed to take advantage of its sloped site, utilizing a system of terraces and inclined walkways to organize the complex program.

Responding to the adjacent residential neighbourhoods to its north, west and east, the new library and civic centre maintains a low one storey profile, yet the interior feels expansive thanks to its internal organization on six different levels that make use of the site’s natural three-metre drop. Each of the six levels is arrived at by way of barrier-free 1:20 sloping walkways, providing fluid movement between the different terraces and programs. The split-level organization allows for two entry points, one at the lower street-level elevation and one at a mid-level elevation adjacent to parking.

The library occupies four of the building’s terraces. The highest level of the library sits exactly one storey above the recreation centre, located at the lowest elevation of the site. A large reading atrium is situated at this high elevation, providing views of the escarpment, tree canopy and Lake Ontario in the distance. Expansive glazing and elegant skylights bring daylight deep into the facility, while elegant limestone and Douglas fir fins help reduce glare and excessive heat gain.

The Waterdown Library and Civic Centre provides an ingenious architectural solution to the naturally sloping site, taking advantage of the existing topography to establish an elegant and universally accessible interior organization for this newly established community hub.

Libraries come in a variety of scales. They range from monumental 15-storey academic libraries to single rooms within schools and institutions. The North End Free Library and Public Bench, designed and financed by TCA/Their + Curran Architects Inc., represents the extreme of small scale libraries, distilling the library to its very core: a place to sit, store and exchange books, and share with the community.

Located at 56 Macaulay Street West in downtown Hamilton, the North End Free Library and Public Bench consists of a simple bench of durable ipe wood slats on a sculpted steel frame and a suspended cedar library box with a cast resin window. Embracing Hamilton’s steelmaking heritage, the steel is unfinished and raw, left with all the mill, tool and fabrication marks and traces. A clear-coat has been applied to protect the frame. Books are imprinted with a custom stamp, designed by TCA.

This miniature library belongs to an emerging library typology going under a number of different names: book trading posts; little free libraries; pop-up libraries or community book exchanges. These “take a book, leave a book” libraries typically consist of small storage containers in a variety of shapes and materials, which house a number of books the community is welcomed to read and exchange. According to the Little Free Library organization, as of January 2016 there are over 36,000 little free library book exchanges
Architect: TCA / Their + Curran Architects Inc.

With tongue firmly in cheek, TCA principal and lead designer Bill Curran says that “this is a unique, new building type - a typology to date addressed only by folk artists, hippies, tree huggers, amateur woodworkers and other ‘granola’ civic minded ne’er-do-wells. It is time that serious, highbrow, bespoke architecture focuses on this emerging building type, and especially since all the “starchitects” have ignored it (so far).”

As an example of tactical urbanism, the North End Free Library and Public Bench is a civic gesture and public amenity that blurs the lines between the public and private. It is about creating community and celebrating literacy. More importantly, it is a project that the architects, designers and collaborators crafted with love for the citizens of Hamilton’s North End neighbourhood.

EVERY YEAR FROM APRIL TO OCTOBER, as part of Doors Open Ontario, communities across the province celebrate their built heritage – both historic and contemporary – by opening the doors of some of Ontario’s greatest architectural treasures to the public, many of them for the first time ever. These unique community events are a great opportunity for residents and visitors alike to explore our province’s rich built heritage, and provide the perfect excuse to get your camera (or smartphone!) out and capture the beauty of Ontario’s architecture.
To help you capture that perfect shot during your next Doors Open excursion, we asked some of Ontario’s architectural photographers – the talent behind many of the photographs featured on this blog – to share three tips.

ARCHITECTURAL PHOTOGRAPHY TIPS: DOUBLESPACE PHOTOGRAPHY (AMANDA LARGE AND YOUNES BOUNHAR)
3 June, 2016

Bringing together their unique experiences and backgrounds – Amanda completed a Bachelor of Architecture from the University of Waterloo and worked in the field for five years; Younes is a former biologist turned landscape photographer – Doublespace Photography is known for their simple, bold and elegant architectural photography. Photographing projects in Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal, and beyond, their work has been featured in numerous publications, including Canadian Architect and Azure Magazine.

FROM THE PHOTOGRAPHERS:

Look up. Be sure to look around you and explore alternatives to eye-level viewpoints. You can often find some great details and compelling compositions by looking up or down.

Chase light. Look for patterns of light and shadow to add further visual interest to your shots. Don’t forget that you can use zoom to isolate part of a space and simplify your compositions.

Add a human touch. It often is not possible to get a “clean” shot of a space, that is to say devoid of people. Use this to your advantage by including figures in your shots to give a sense of scale and interaction with the building, as well as to add a sense of movement.
ARCHITECTURAL PHOTOGRAPHY TIPS: SCOTT NORSWORTHY

7 May, 2016

The following tips come from Toronto based architectural photographer and OAA Intern Architect, Scott Norsworthy. Holding an undergraduate degree in architecture from McGill University and a Masters of Architecture from the University of Toronto, Scott’s personal pursuit of exploring and documenting architecture has grown into a passion for making images that capture what he feels is important, unusual, or remarkable in the world. He has worked with numerous practices across Canada and his work is featured in leading publications including Azure, Canadian Architect, and the National Geographic Traveller Magazine.

FROM THE PHOTOGRAPHER:

Don’t try to capture the whole building. Look for details and moments that you find beautiful. Get closer to things than you think you should and position yourself to isolate what you’re shooting against a clean background. Look for unusual light and shadows. Try to eliminate visual clutter and any other elements that distract from your subject.

Consider the foreground. Understand the building you’re shooting not just a solitary, isolated object, but as something that sits within, and relates to, its context, whether it’s a busy urban street or the Canadian wilderness. Look for angles that say something meaningful about your subject and depict it in a way that highlights what you find important and special about the building.

Look for the right people in the right places. Instead of trying to eliminate people from your shots, use them as a way to tell a story and bring some life into the image. Human figures are also helpful to provide a sense of scale in photographs of a building. Crowds can be distracting but being patient and waiting for the right moment when crowds disperse can be very rewarding.

The Canadian Landscape: Cabins, Cottages + Camps

Original bl0AAg post edited by Joël León, content has been adapted and reformatted for Profiles.

FEW BUILDING TYPES ARE AS INTRINSICALLY knit into Ontario’s cultural identity as the cottage. From Castle Frank, the 1790s summer residence of Upper Canada’s first Lieutenant Governor John Graves Simcoe, to the proliferation of summer cabins in Ontario’s cottage country throughout the 1900s, these wilderness retreats have become synonymous with the province – part of our collective identity and a yearly tradition for many Ontarians.

With cottage season right around the corner, bl0AAg turns its attention to this beloved summer activity with a series on Cottages, Cabins and Camps!
no-nonsense A frame roof evokes the archetypical Canadian cottage – it’s steep, 7 meter tall roof recalling Quebec’s 18th c. Villeneuve house, long considered an early precursor of Canada’s unique architectural identity. Meanwhile its rich material palette of charred cedar, black steel, and mirrors speak to its contemporary spirit, one that reflects current architectural preoccupations and multi-cultural influence. But whether referencing tradition or showcasing innovation, all these elements are deeply connected to the nature of the site – the highly pitched roof is a practical response to snowy Canadian winters; the mirrored

LAKE COTTAGE (2013)
28 August, 2016

The dialogue between building and nature – structure and site – is among the most fundamental considerations in the design of a cottage. Whether it is through materiality, siting, scale, or views, cottages seek to establish meaningful and fulfilling connections with the landscapes they are sited in – and when done effectively, a cottage can further enhance the inherent beauty of the land (and waters) around it.

Situated among the spruce and birch forest of the Kawarthas, just east of Lake Simcoe, is an award-winning structure that elegantly captures this building/nature relationship, all while employing an unapologetically modern architectural language. Lake Cottage, designed by Toronto-based architecture practice UUFie Inc., has been described as an earth-bound treehouse, where nature forms an intrinsic part of the building. In this post of our summer bloAAg series “Cottages, Cabins, and Camps,” we take a look at this contemporary structure and its unique relationship with nature.

From the outside, Lake Cottage comes across as both traditional and contemporary. It’s simple, outdoor terrace helps to visually extend the forest into the building.

Among the most interesting materials used in Lake Cottage is the exterior’s charred cedar siding. This unique treatment finds its origins in Japan where it is known as shou sugi ban. The technique, consisting of preserving wood by charring its surface, results in an all-natural material which is rot, pest and weather resistant, all without the use of additional preservatives and chemicals, and is practically maintenance free – a truly natural solution to a complex building problem.

The poetic relationship between building and nature continues on the inside, where materials, finishes, views and textures create a minimalist, natural and incredibly playful retreat. The main living space is designed as a self-contained space – a building within a building – while the peripheral rooms are treated as part of the site. Fourteen openings around this grand living space provide framed views of the peripheral inhabited spaces, as well as views towards the sky and trees, making interior and exterior landscapes inherently equal. Finishes and edges are left to showcase their natural origins; this is perhaps best exemplified by the solid timber staircase that climbs into a playfully sunlight loft.

All throughout the interior, playful references reinforce the connection to nature – the window frames in the dining area recall an abstract forest, while the fish-scale shingles of the loft are painted in a soft sky blue.

Through playful design and conscious material choices, Lake Cottage exemplifies fluidity between interior and exterior spaces, where the experience of living within nature is made within a contemporary setting. Its unique design was recognized in 2015 with an OAA Design Excellence Award as well as the Michael V. and Wanda Plachta award.

REED’S BAY HOUSE (2014)

31 July, 2016

Straddling the Canada-U.S. border where the St. Lawrence River emerges from Lake Ontario, the Thousand Islands is an ecologically and historically significant archipelago consisting of 1,864 islands (two-thirds of them in Ontario). Recognized for their unique biodiversity and natural beauty, the archipelago contains Canada’s oldest national park east of the Rockies – Thousand Islands National Park – and is part of the Thousand Islands-Frontenac Arch UNESCO World Biosphere Reserve.

With its stunning beauty and proximity to large urban centres, including New York City, Philadelphia, Toronto and Montreal, it is no surprise that the archipelago has long sustained a significant summer tourism industry dating back to the 1850s when luxurious grand hotels and steamboat tours characterized this popular bi-national vacation destination. This early tourism industry reached its peak in the early 1900s when wealthy city dwellers built elaborate vacation homes – locally known as “castles” – on many of the archipelago’s islands. Among the most significant examples are Dark Island Castle, designed in 1903 by American architect Ernest Flagg as the summer residence for Frederick Gilbert Bourne, president of the Singer Manufacturing Company, and Boldt Castle, designed in 1900 by U.S. architectural practice G.W. & W.D. Hewitt as the summer mansion of George Boldt, general manager of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City.

Summer homes continue to be an important part of the Thousand Islands’ cultural landscape, with modern cottages continuing the century-old recreational tradition of the castles. Built on Wolfe Island, the largest island in the archipelago, the Reed’s Bay House, designed by Toronto-based architectural practice superkül, is a superb example of the region’s newest generation of cottages. Unlike its older, more exuberant predecessors, the Reed’s Bay House is an exercise in restraint and simplicity – a modern residence attuned to contemporary economic, aesthetic and ecological sensibilities.

This simple year-round residence for a professional couple is modelled after the vernacular long barn, its simple form cut into to provide sheltered outdoor space while simultaneously capitalizing on the enjoyment of the expansive Lake Ontario views. The resulting void enables discreet entry from the covered terrace at the side of the house while providing seductive passage directly through the iconic shed form and down a perpendicular boardwalk. Edged with tall reed grasses, the 16.5-metre (54-foot) long boardwalk provides a transitional sense of arrival and departure, leading to the road and offering views toward fertile fields of corn, hay and soybeans.

Designed with pared-down elegance and economy in mind, the owners undertook some of the construction themselves. Simple volumetric forms interlock to provide a spatially generous home on a small footprint. The house turns its back to the road, favouring the lake orientation. Its design is organized by a narrow double-height corridor along its eastern back edge, while living and sleeping quarters are located along southern and western edges facing the lake. With 3-metre [10-foot] high glazed panels, these rooms are awash in natural light and enjoy privileged views of land and water.

Upstairs, a loft contains a second bedroom and an open office; the steeply pitched roof imbues both spaces with an intimate and gently compressed spatial dynamic.

Operable skylights and windows admit additional daylight to penetrate virtually every room in the house while enabling passive ventilation to occur. Cedar boards painted white amplify the reflective light quality and pale austerity of the interior. Additionally, low-maintenance local grasses and plantings were used throughout the site to integrate with the local ecosystem and to reduce irrigation requirements.
GO HOME BAY CABIN (2015)
9 March, 2016
OAA Awards 2016 Design Excellence Winner

Set within a rocky landscape of wind-shaped white pines, this all-seasons family cabin in Ontario’s picturesque Go Home Bay is a thoughtful response to the over-scaled structures that have become increasingly commonplace in the area. The cabin presents a promising alternative to the prevailing bigger-is-better trend, embodying the modesty of vernacular cottages that have unobtrusively dotted the area since the 1890s, all while employing a contemporary architectural language.

The cabin is strategically sited to respect the landscape’s natural beauty. When approached by water, mature trees fragment the views of the low-slung volume, making it difficult to distinguish site from building. It is only as visitors climb up from the dock and make their way through a juniper meadow that the building emerges as a clearly defined charcoal-coloured box. This soft-touch approach is instantly evident in the cabin’s construction: its form cantilevering off concrete piers so as to float over the granite outcrop.

The amber-hued interiors, framed in rough-sawn fir, are efficient, compact and distilled down to the necessary essentials for peaceful weekends outside the city.

An intimate knowledge of the site’s weather patterns – the inner bay locale can be stiflingly hot in the summer due to lack of airflow – lead to a multi-pronged approach to achieve passive thermal comfort. The irrigated green roof ameliorates cooling, integrated sunshades reduce heat gain, and the main space, capped by operable clerestories, transforms into a screened porch to improve cross ventilation.

The Go Home Bay cabin provides an alternative model for cottage development which is unobtrusive and site responsive. Its simplicity belies a profound connection to the surrounding nature that is at once strong and sensitive, stirring and peaceful.
OAAAS: THE TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM OF THE OAA

THE ONTARIO ASSOCIATION FOR APPLIED Architectural Sciences (OAAAS) is the Technology Program of the OAA. The program reflects the important role architectural technologists play in the practice of architecture.

OAAAS administers the process through which a suitably qualified architectural technologist can become a Licensed Technologist OAA (Lic.Tech. OAA). To join OAAAS and become eligible to join the OAA, a candidate must have appropriate education, 7200 hours of professional work experience, attend the OAA Admission Course, and pass a rigorous Lic.Tech. OAA examination. The experience must be documented while working with or for an OAA-licensed architect, or supervised by a Licensed Technologist OAA who is working under an architectural firm’s Certificate of Practice.

While most of the 114 Lic.Tech. OAA members continue to work in Ontario architectural practices, 24 members have an OAA Certificate of Practice, under which they can provide services directly to the public within the terms, limitations and conditions established by the OAA Council.

Increasingly, technologists are embracing the OAAAS program because it provides advantages, whether their career is within an architectural practice or as an independent designer.

In order for our communities to be vibrant, not only does the individual project need to be well designed, it needs to address its context, how it relates to the streetscape, and its role in creating a better, livable, safer community.

Just like the variety of building types, there is also a variety of designers and builders. Architects are the only individuals qualified to design the full range of building types and sizes. Their education, experience and ability to problem solve make them a wise choice for any project.

For your building project, you will want to consult a professional: an architect.

LOOK AROUND YOU. THERE IS a vast array of building types:
- residential
- institutional
- commercial
- industrial
- mixed use

Each has its own specific users and needs. This amount of diversity requires someone who understands the big picture of our society and communities as well as someone who is trained in the complexity of the processes and details of building design. Each project is a component within a community.
Many people will not have previously retained an architect. By law, buildings which exceed three storeys in height or 600m²/6458 sq.ft. (gross area) must be designed by an architect, with the exception of assembly occupancy, which requires the services on an architect regardless of the size and those industrial buildings or parts thereof which may be designed only by a professional engineer. For buildings that do not fall into the above noted categories, you have the choice of who the designer will be. Every project introduces opportunities where you can benefit by choosing a professional.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OF HIRING AN ARCHITECT FOR YOUR PROJECT?

When you hire an architect, you can be assured they are:

- qualified for admission into the profession, including established standards for education, experience and examination;
- continuing to develop their skill and proficiency through the OAA competency program;
- applying standards of professional ethics; and
- covered by professional liability insurance.

Architects meet high professional standards. When we’re dealing with important decisions and projects don’t you want the best on your team? Professional, Competent, Accountable, Responsible, Successful.

A project that is designed and built by an architect is one which is a successful collaboration between client and architect, it is well thought out. Building projects are big investments and the final product should be effective, efficient, and beautiful. We are all unique and each one of us lives differently. An architect can help you create a space that meets your specific needs and addresses your objectives, concerns, hopes and interests. A solution that responds to your needs will save you time in daily tasks and enhance your experience. In the long run, an architect can save you time and money. By working together with an architect your project may exceed your expectations!

Whether you are building a new structure, planning some renovations, or adding to an existing building—architects brings value to your project by taking care of your interests and producing a quality building project.

An architecturally designed project can result in cost-savings in energy solutions and long-term maintenance costs. Designing and constructing is the beginning of the process, but a building has ongoing costs of running, maintaining, and upgrading over time. An architect can see you through the life-cycle of your project and can address issues in the design phase to create simple, effective solutions for the future.

Universal design, sustainability and “green” issues are concerns in which the public are now becoming more educated and interested. Architects are well versed in the processes, products and systems which can make a real difference in our world. Architects see these concerns as part of the project; it’s an integral part of the services they provide. If you want your project “to be kind to the planet and its people,” an architect is definitely your best choice.

Whether you’re thinking of a renovation, a new build, or planning a complex development, involving an architect early on in the design process is a key to success.

ARCHITECTS BRING VALUE TO YOUR PROJECT

Hiring an architect for your project is peace of mind. The route to a completed building project is challenging. There are many decisions to be made along the way which will have a strong impact on how your project functions and looks. Your architect can see you through the process, not only easing the way by helping you avoid wrong turns, but can direct you to innovative solutions.

The result you want is a successful project that fulfils the desires of the owners, while meeting the needs of the users and contributing to the general well-being of the environment. Such projects are the result of a working process between clients and architects.

SOME OF THE SERVICES ARCHITECTS PROVIDE

When planning a new building, renovating or restoring an old one, applying universal design, solving a particular functional or space planning problem, all of which are within the scope of an architect’s expertise. Traditional architectural services, focusing on the design and construction of buildings, include:

- listening to and understanding the client’s aspirations
- taking a client’s instructions
- reviewing the client’s program and construction budget
- realizing the client’s objectives
- establishing a program
- concept design
- designing buildings that comply with the Building Code
- understanding and applying basic principles of structural design
- understanding and applying basic principles of design theory
- selecting and coordinating normal structural, mechanical and electrical engineering services
- construction documents
- technical specifications
- guide through the complex regulatory building process
- selecting and coordinating normal structural, mechanical and electrical engineering services
- preparing the necessary preliminary and final design studies
- preparing estimates
- preparing working drawings and specifications
- assisting in the drafting of bid forms for contractors, proposals and contracts including the actual call for bids
- assisting the client in obtaining routine approvals from the authorities who have jurisdiction
- reporting on bids and proposals
- carrying out contract administration of the construction phase, including the general review of the construction

Architects provide professional services.

ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN COMPETITIONS

Competition documents prepared by the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada (RAIC) describing the options for organizing competitions and the rules which govern them is endorsed by the Ontario Association of Architects. This document is available on the RAIC website at: www.raic.org/architecture_architects/architectural_competitions/index_e.htm

The architect, as prime consultant on your project, can administer a contract that will result in the completion of your project on schedule, within budget, and to high standards of quality.

SELECTING AN ARCHITECT

Selecting the right architect for your project is one of the most significant decisions you make as a client. For more information on Selecting an Architect and How the OAA Can Help, see page 54.
Architects今天 are involved in diverse areas of practice and business. There are specialists and generalists in private practice. As well, architects are employed by a variety of large corporations, institutions, and small businesses applying their skills in research, innovation, and creative problem solving in a wide range of areas. Traditional practice, focusing on the design and construction of buildings, is still a popular choice for many architects.

Choosing an architect means you will have the best on your team dealing with your project. Professional, Competent, Accountable, Responsible.

The Ontario Association of Architects ensures that the profession remains responsive to the needs of society.

The Ontario Government has given Ontario architects the privilege of self-regulation. The Ontario Association of Architects regulates the practice of architecture in Ontario.

Ontario architects are the only individuals qualified to design buildings in the province greater than three storeys or 600m² (6458 sq.ft.).

The Association is dedicated to promoting and increasing the knowledge, skill and proficiency of its members, and administering the Architects Act, in order that the public interest may be served and protected.
All architectural practices are also required to obtain a Certificate of Practice issued by the Ontario Association of Architects.

Members of the public may obtain copies of the Architects Act, and Regulation 27, through the Ontario Government’s e-laws website (www.search.e-laws.gov.on.ca).

SELECTING AN ARCHITECT

Selecting the right architect for your project is one of the most significant decisions you make as a client.

There are three basic methods of selecting the architect that is best suited for your project: Direct Selection; Quality Based Selection; Architectural Design Competitions. Each method has its advantages depending on such variables as your requirements, the complexity of the project and your time schedule.

To meet a client’s needs, architects must compete on the basis of their ability to perform the required services, not on the basis of fees. Therefore a competitive bid method of selecting an architect is not recommended. Competitive bids for architectural fees can degenerate into an auction, forcing fees down to unrealistically low levels, resulting in fewer hours of professional skill being devoted to developing an economical and satisfactory project. Savings in professional fees precipitate the reduction of design quality and professional services, and the client loses in the end. When an architect has been selected on an appropriate balance of skill, experience, imagination, sensitivity and ability to perform on schedule and within a construction budget consistent with a client’s needs, it is relatively simple to negotiate a fair fee.

DIRECT SELECTION

Is most often used for residential architecture as well as small projects.

You can select an architect on the basis of special expertise required, reputation, familiarity with the location, personal acquaintance or a recommendation. You may seek an architect who designed a similar project you like. Your final decision may be based on your comfort level and rapport with a particular architect.

QUALITY BASED SELECTION

Is most commonly used by building committees representing institutions, corporations or public and private agencies.

It is a sensible, balanced procedure for selecting an architect on the basis of professional qualifications and competence, using value-based criteria. A comparison is made between two or more architects by a building committee that you set up. The committee makes a selection based upon their judgement of which architect is most likely to handle the project successfully.

A document providing detailed information about Quality Based Selection (QBS) is available at www.oaa.on.ca.

ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN COMPETITIONS

Architectural Design Competitions solicit design solutions which are judged impartially on the comparative excellence, imagination and ingenuity of the submissions. The winner of an architectural competition is normally awarded the commission for the project. The architects for many public buildings such as City Halls, Museums and Galleries, are selected by this method. There are basically two types of architectural competitions, “open” and “limited.”

A document describing the rules for organizing an Open Architectural Competition is available on the OAA Website, visit “Public Resources,” go to “Hire an Architect” and click on “Architectural Competitions.”

In order to assist you in considering conducting a limited competition, “Guidelines for Limited Competitions” are available from the Ontario Association of Architects’ website, please see the link above.

HOW TO FIND AN ARCHITECT

To begin, go to www.oaa.on.ca and click on the “Discover an Architect” tab. The OAA’s database of practices gives you the most up-to-date information. You can search by location or practice name. Practices’ websites are linked to this listing to view their portfolio and learn more about their philosophy and expertise.

Visit the OAA Website to search our database of practices. Your most up-to-date resource for practice listings.

YOU CAN ADVERTISE YOUR PROJECT TO OUR MEMBERS

The OAA’s Project Opportunities allows clients to post projects that require an architect. More than 5,000 members can access this information. For more information:

Go to www.oaa.on.ca, click on “Services & Resources” tab, see “Classifieds”.

The result you want is a successful project that fulfils the desires of the owners, while meeting the needs of the users and contributing to the general well-being of the environment. Such projects are the result of a working process between informed clients and skilled architects.
TIPS ON HOW TO USE RAIC’S GUIDE TO DETERMINING FEES FOR ARCHITECTURAL SERVICES

Then

A schedule of fees for architectural services based on a percentage of the construction cost was widely accepted and used following the Second World War. Expectations and roles within the design and construction industry were consistent and clearly understood. Architect’s services for any building project were very much the same and builders generally performed in a consistent manner based on a standard set of customs and procedures. Therefore it was relatively easy to identify a typical fee for services of an architect for a particular building type.

Now

Today the situation has changed and it is necessary to examine every single building project to determine the appropriate fee for an architect’s services. The practice of architecture and the provision of architectural services have evolved considerably. The architect and client must agree upon a wide range of project requirements and negotiate a fee based on each unique project. Some of the reasons for this include:

• Widely different authorities having jurisdiction and approval processes based on building type and jurisdiction;
• Increasingly complex and sophisticated building systems and technologies;
• Different forms of project delivery;
• Project phasing with multiple building occupancies at various different times;
• Numerous additional specialists to consult and coordinate;
• Additional (or reduced) levels of services depending on each project and its method of delivery;

This national fee guideline includes updated recommendations for percentage-based fees. The guidelines are intended for both clients and architects alike and supports existing provincial fee guidelines.

It is important to note that there is no “standard” or “recommended” basis for calculating the fee, as the fee is dependent on the specific requirements of the project and the client.
• Wide variations in construction costs;
• New project design and documentation requirements such as Building Information Modeling (BIM);
• Requirements for third-party certification (such as LEED®);
• New demands for rapid construction and tight schedules;
• Greater overhead costs as a result of extensive and complex "Requests for Proposals" and new marketing expenses;
• Greater expectations for energy conservation and building performance;
• Extensive submissions at various stages of project documentation.

TIPS FOR CLIENTS

The Guide provides information as to the variety of ways in which an architect is compensated, according to the scope of the architect’s services and the project’s type (classification), size (area) and scope (complexity).

When you embark on a construction program, you are making a commitment to what may be a major investment in an unknown quantity. While it is possible to define the proposed facility broadly in terms of size and function, there are significant variables needing attention:
• How well and how long will the facility serve its intended purpose?
• Will it be responsive to the needs of its users and the community?
• What will the "Life Cycle" costs for operating the building be?
• Will the building be built using "Green Building Practices" for a reduced impact on the environment?

The architect you select to design the facility will be a major determinant in answering these questions. Training and experience enable the architect to transform your ideas and functional needs into an architectural program; a conceptual design; and the working drawings and technical specifications from which the facility will be constructed under the architect’s administration and field review.

During the design and construction of your building, the architect effectively becomes a major contributor to your organization serving as advisor, coordinator, and technical manager as well as creative artist. In a large measure the architect will determine the functional as well as aesthetic success of the project.

An architect needs to be able to provide the appropriate level of service required and conduct their business in a professional manner. Compensation should reflect not only the cost for the architect to provide services but also (and more appropriately) the value of those services.

If it is decided that a contractor should be made responsible for the design as well as the construction of the project - the "design/build" option is appropriate.

• the client will benefit from the services of an architect in specifying the requirements in the building contract, or
• the contractor should appoint an architect to develop the design, where it is required under the Architects Act.

In either situation (of a design/build option), the appointment of an architect can be covered by published amendments to the OAA 600 client/architect contract, a "made in Ontario for Ontario architects" version of the national RAIC 6 standard contract form.

CONSIDERATIONS

DEVELOP A WORKING RELATIONSHIP

A sound working relationship between client and architect will contribute significantly to the success of a project. Time spent in preliminary discussion about the requirements, the timetable, the budget, and the nature and cost of professional resources required and their cost is time well spent.

CONSIDER THE RANGE OF SERVICES

The architect can provide a range of services. For a building project, these begin with investigating the feasibility of the requirements, developing design proposals, applying for statutory approvals, preparing construction information, obtaining bids for building work reviewing construction, and administering a building contract. The architect works with a broad palette of skills. The architect can coordinate or arrange normal structural, mechanical, and electrical engineering services, and other specialty consulting services connected with the project (e.g. interior design, landscaping, IT, security, signage or barrier free access).

The architect’s skills are not only relevant to whole building projects but also may be applied to related issues, including such diverse matters as strategic planning or master planning of property development for a client and the design or selection of furniture, fittings and equipment for the project.

COMPLYING WITH RESPONSIBILITIES AND OBLIGATIONS

The architect is required to design within the client’s program and requirements of authorities having jurisdiction and, of course, to work within existing laws relating to construction work, such as legislation and common law. All architects offering or providing services to the public must have a “Certificate of Practice” issued by the OAA and carry professional liability insurance.

The architect will assist with the steps that must be taken to achieve compliance, and on the need for approvals. Architects can make submissions and conduct negotiations with authorities having jurisdiction, but obviously cannot guarantee outcomes beyond their control.

Health and safety requirements in design and construction are governed by the Ministry of Labour.
OAA SERVICES TO THE PUBLIC

WE PROVIDE THE FOLLOWING RESOURCES TO ASSIST YOU IN FINDING AN ARCHITECTURAL PRACTICE FOR YOUR PROJECT:

RESOURCES
WWW.OAA.ON.CA

The OAA Website is the most up-to-date, current source for information about architects and architecture. We invite you to visit and participate in this dynamic online community.

Here are just some of the resources available at www.oaa.on.ca

PROJECT OPPORTUNITIES
This area of the site allows clients to post current projects available to architectural practices. More than 5000 members can access this information.

For more information:
Go to www.oaa.on.ca, click on “Professional Resources,” go to “Classifieds,” see “Project Opportunities.”

We invite you to find out more about architectural services, the profession and the Association.

See the following additional resources and services:

CAREER INFORMATION
Go to www.oaa.on.ca, click on “Public Resources” and see “Become An Architect.”

OAA PROGRAMS
Find out detailed information about OAA programs including:

CONTINUING EDUCATION
The OAA has a mandatory Continuing Education program for its members.

Visit www.oaa.on.ca, click on “Professional Resources,” see “Continuing Education” for more information.

AWARDS
The OAA’s annual awards program promotes the best of Ontario architecture. Members of the public are encouraged to participate in the People’s Choice Awards and the Landmark Award. A summary of the current OAA awards program including criteria, description, and submission information, and images of the past winners can be accessed at www.oaa.on, go to “The OAA,” click on “Awards.”

OAA PERSPECTIVES
The OAA Journal is published quarterly. It is distributed to 6,000 architects, institutions, allied professionals, government agencies, and libraries. It is available upon request from the OAA.

There is also an electronic version of this publication which can be accessed at www.oaa.on.ca – go to “News & Events,” click on “Perspectives magazine.”

OAA ANNUAL CONFERENCE
The OAA holds its Conference in Toronto (odd years) and at another Ontario location (even years). The Conference, traditionally held in May, attracts more than 1,000 architects, allied professionals and building industry representatives who attend Continuing Education sessions, tours, keynote speeches and social events. Learn more at www.oaa.on.ca, go to “News & Events,” click on “OAA Annual Conference.”

From May 24–27, 2017 the OAA will be joining the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada’s (RAIC) Festival of Architecture celebrating the theme of Architecture 150. The event will consider the role of architecture in creating our built heritage and expressing our culture as we move forward. Architecture profoundly affects people; it forms the buildings and communities that Canadians call home, and it reflects the values of society. The work of architects contributes to well-being, quality of life and economic prosperity. Canadians increasingly appreciate design, yet public awareness of the role of architects is lower than the profession would like. As we solidify the cultural legacy of past generations, how do architects of today and tomorrow reinforce their role as leaders in creating livable and sustainable communities shaped by enduring design excellence?

PRACTICE ADVISORY SERVICES
If you have questions, issues, or problems regarding architectural practice, we want to hear from you. You can contact an OAA Practice Advisor for guidance and to confidentially discuss issues, questions and problems by calling 416-449-6898 or e-mail practiceadvisor@oaa.on.ca. For more information visit www.oaa.on.ca, go to “Professional Resources,” “Practice Support,” see “Hotline.”

COMPLAINTS & DISCIPLINE PROCESS
A complaint can be filed with the OAA by calling 416-449-6898. The Complaints Committee considers and investigates complaints made by members of the public (or members of the Association) against a member of the Association, holder of a Certificate of Practice or a holder of a Temporary Licence. The Committee may refer cases of professional misconduct to the Discipline Committee.

DOCUMENTS
This is a library of commonly requested documents available from the OAA. It includes the Canadian Handbook of Practice, Quality Based Selection, and information on finding an architect and beginning a project.

Go to www.oaa.on.ca, click on “Professional Resources” tab, see Documents.

HOW TO “FIND AN ARCHITECT”
“Discover an Architect” is your most up-to-date resource for architects and practice listings. You can use this search tool to find an architectural practice by municipality or name. See Practices Profiles for more information.

Go to www.oaa.on.ca, and click on “Discover an Architect.”

We’ve been in the stone business a LONG time

... okay, not quite that long, but 65 years is still quite a while.

Creative design, meticulous craftsmanship, and quality materials are timeless construction essentials.

For over 65 years we have enabled architects and builders to specify and construct with total confidence. Their creativity and workmanship are consistently, beautifully, and tastefully reflected through our broad selection of virtually every stone type and colour, be it on a home, a hospital, or anything in between.

Be certain that your vision and its expression endure. You will be certain with Shouldice Designer Stone.

Expressence

- PREMIUM COATED METAL by Vicwest

Fusing the timeless beauty of wood or stone with the durability of metal.

AUTHENTIC
Expressence creates a natural fit between form and function, allowing you to express your vision in ways never before possible, with an array of exclusive finishes.

DURABLE
Using advanced PVDF paint technology to achieve stunningly realistic imagery, this premium coated metal finish is consistent for colour fastness throughout the product. Typically, natural materials are prone to cracking, damage and seasonal installation restrictions. The advanced Expressence paint process yields a durable finish that is easy to maintain, while adding the beauty of a natural finish with the strength of steel.

LIMITLESS
Whatever you imagine, Expressence can make an affordable reality of stunning exterior and interior surfaces.

NOTE: For more information about building with steel, please refer to the CSSBI publication on the structural integrity of steel building panels.

Some of the best architects choose Pollard Windows & Doors for their projects. Pollard has been manufacturing quality products for almost 70 years. Their longevity comes from the ability to design innovative products in Pollard’s own R&D facility and build those products to the highest standards in its 300,000+ sq. ft. state-of-the-art manufacturing plant. Pollard products consistently meet the latest ENERGY STAR® standards and are being specified in some of the most energy efficient LEED® homes in North America. Pollard’s commitment to providing exceptional value with an industry leading warranty has been the blueprint to their continued success.

ASEPTI HealthCare is an antimicrobial option for wood doors and hardware, specially intended for:

- Heavy-traffic buildings, such as healthcare institutions;
- Areas with a medium to high risk of HAI, hospital acquired infections.

ASEPTI HealthCare is a smart opening system, featuring:

- Doors with factory-installed hardware;
- On-site installation readiness, for:
  - Real savings in handling and administration time for the distributor,
  - Real savings in labour and on-site installation.
